

Letter of Recommendation

It is my pleasure to recommend Emmanouela Tsakalidou, who completed her internship at Valmore Technologies as a Software Development Intern.

During her internship, she became an active member of our development team, contributing to the implementation of software features and participating in day-to-day development tasks. She worked with React Native on real-world mobile application projects and was involved in software testing, debugging, and troubleshooting activities. Throughout this process, she demonstrated a solid willingness to learn, adapt to new technologies, and continuously improve her technical skills.

One of her most notable qualities was her eagerness to learn. She consistently welcomed feedback, asked thoughtful questions, and applied what she learned to her work. As her internship progressed, we observed clear growth in both her technical abilities and her confidence in tackling increasingly challenging tasks.

In addition to her technical contributions, she proved to be reliable, responsible, and professional in her daily work. She met her commitments, collaborated effectively with other team members, and maintained a positive attitude throughout her internship. Her strong work ethic and willingness to support the team made her a valued member of our organization.

Overall, we were very satisfied with her performance, professional conduct, and development during her time with us. We believe she has established a strong foundation in software development and has the motivation and potential to continue growing as a software engineer.

I would confidently recommend Emmanouela Tsakalidou for opportunities in software development, particularly in mobile application development. I am confident that she will be a valuable addition to any development team.

Should you require any additional information, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Dimitris Ampelakiotis | Co-Owner, CTO
